On this page we will compare two versions of Photoshop. First, the "Semi-Premium" version which is bundled with every Windows computer, and the "Professional" version, which is the original version. We will cover the differences between the two software packages using over 25+ free tutorials and demos to make it easy for you to learn and make the most of Photoshop. Why Is Photoshop Now Free? It all started with the launch of Photoshop in 1993. The program made the transition from a commercial program to a free one when Adobe decided to publish the software for the first time under the GPL open source license. It was a move that was later emulated by most other big software companies, although at the time the move was controversial and there were concerns about whether the move would impact users. The (non) fear of losing customers At the time of its launch, Photoshop was a full-featured professional graphics editor. It set a new standard for what it meant to be able to edit and process images in post-processing. Since it launched, its growth has been spectacular, with more than a million registered users to date. Users find that they need to upgrade to the "Professional" version when they want to edit large files, because the low file size limit for the free "Semi-

Premium" version is in the gigabytes. This limit was lowered to several hundred megabytes in an update of 2013. It is still way more than a photo can handle. On the one hand, some users still worry about being cut off from a software that has been ubiquitous for so long, while on the other hand, many photo lovers are wary of paying so much for an image editing program. This change to a free license had benefits for Adobe and users. The move was also a way to increase the chances of the company to compete with the many other software companies who also offer free programs. Adobe also began to seriously invest more in online support for its products. Photoshop CS6 Deep Dive: Making Pics In 2016, Adobe introduced a new version of Photoshop. It was an update which would have included a "CS" number after it was released. It was released as an update to Photoshop CC 2014 so the user was already using the newest edition, or not. The new update added a new feature to easily select and copy your favorite photos from a long list of supported files. It also introduced a "Photomerge" and "

Search News DRC arrests over $20m in counterfeit goods
The World Customs Organization (WCO) said on Tuesday that 2,000 people arrested in a customs operation in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) have been charged with importing counterfeit goods worth more than $20m. The arrests in December and January, which involved the seizure of more than 25,000 counterfeit goods, was part of Operation Eco-Impunity, an international law enforcement initiative established in September by the WCO and the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) to fight the increased production of fake luxury goods such as handbags, watches, cars and clothing. “[Operation Eco-Impunity] was a success and not only demonstrates the need to adapt to market realities, but also the growing desire for a reduction in customs corruption,” said Luc Nziza Akoa, director of enforcement and investigations at the WCO. The seized goods included a number of items that were openly listed as counterfeit, such as leather handbags, as well as items that were not listed as counterfeit, such as clothing items. “The counterfeits seized during Operation Eco-Impunity represented a loss of around 3% of the total value of smuggled luxury goods in the country,” said Mr. Akoa. “This is the first time that the DRC has clearly demonstrated its will to combat these crimes. We hope that it will be the first of many, as we encourage DRC authorities to hold all illegal stakeholders accountable for the damage they cause.” The WCO, which operates under the auspices of the UN, regularly brings prosecutions against individuals and businesses that bring goods in from other countries that are either being sold in local shops or shipped to areas in the DRC where they are sold as genuine products. The majority of the goods seized during Operation Eco-Impunity were from China and Hong Kong, followed by Italy, Switzerland, France, the United Kingdom, Belgium, the United States, Japan, Malaysia, Brazil, Canada and Germany. It is still early days for the initiative, with only a few months of data available, so it is difficult to determine how many criminals were caught in Operation Eco-Impunity. However, the initiative has allowed investigators to make some initial observations about the nature of the crime. The WCO said that one of the most common crimes related to smuggling is counterfeiting or copying

Q: How to turn this code into an if statement? I am trying to make my site go to a specific URL based on the pages my site holds. I have a select with 3 options. Based on the option I choose I would like the site to go to a specific URL. This all works fine, but I would like to use an if statement instead of assigning variables to each select option. My code: Any thoughts? A: To check the value of the dropdown you can use `$_POST['custom']` PHP:

$custom = $_POST['custom']; if($custom == "opener.com") { $domain_name = ""; }else if($custom == "player.tour") { $domain_name = ""; }else if($custom == "blog.tour") { $domain_name = ""; }
